Ohio Collaborative Advisory Board

This month the City of New Albany Police department received its initial certification from the Ohio Collaborative Advisory Board. The Collaborative is a recent state initiative intended to improve community-police relations across the state. The police department will have an on-site assessment from the Collaborative in order to attain the final certification.

Computer Aided Dispatch and Records Management System (CAD/RMS)

On March 6th the police department switched to a new CAD/RMS system. The new system, from Tyler Technology, was purchased in 2016 and preparations to implement the new system have been underway for a year. The new system will improve the departments operations as the technological back bone of many of the department's functions. Dispatch Supervisor, Elizabeth Lybarger has worked persistently as the CAD/RMS conversion project manager to ensure the quality and efficiency of the transition. Her work and the work of everyone involved will provide the department with efficiencies that will help improve the level of service to the community.

Citizen Police Academy

In March the participants in the New Albany and Gahanna Police Departments' Citizen Police Academy received instruction on how to prepare and react to active shooters, firearms familiarity and safety, 911 dispatching, crime scene investigations, and drug identification and awareness. The participants also participated in force on force scenarios using Simunition guns and received one on one instruction at the firing range. The participants performed very well and asked great questions. This year's class is our largest with a great mix of residents from both cities.
